This key is one of the oldest and most treasured relics of our school. It symbolizes the responsibility that the senior class carries for Benjamin Franklin High School. At the end of every school year, in a symbolic ceremony, the key is passed from the graduating class to the junior class. This traditional act carries with it a part of our American heritage as it reminds us of the key that was so important in Benjamin Franklin's discovery of electricity. It also symbolizes the passing on to those who come after us the key to knowledge and learning.

On its red mahogany surface, worn down with age, are scrawled the signatures of every senior class officer since the first graduating class. The earliest signature is that of Samuel J. Catalfano, 1931.

O, Franklin High, we praise thee, whose precepts onward lead.
Thy noble works and high ideals
will form our daily creed.
Within thy walls we work and play and friendships grow each passing day.

Our hopes and aims will always be to laud and honor thee.

Alessio Evangelista

The Class of '76 dedicates this year's Key Yearbook to Alessio A. Evangelista.

His years of generous devotion and concern for his students and other young people have earned for him the distinction of being chosen Rochester Teacher of the Year for 1976. Although he is very active in school affairs, and for the past two years has been a substitute dean, a member of the Faculty Senate, Student Grievance Committee, Instructional Council, and more recently, Coordinator of the new seventh grade program at Benjamin Franklin Junior-Senior High School, he still finds time to inspire and instruct those who seek his assistance. Unlike his favorite character, Don Quixote who only thought he did good, Mr. Evangelista has really had a great influence on those with whom he has come in contact.

Since the beginning of our country in 1776, great men have shaped our nation's destiny, and we, the Class of 1976, will remember Alessio Evangelista as the great man who helped shape our future.

STARS

Franklin High School Cheerleaders

Cheerleading has become a sport over the years. It takes a lot of hard work, patience, and dedication to have a really good squad. For the past five years, the Franklin Cheerleaders have won the title of State Champions at the New York State Cheerleading Tournament, which is held annually. The competition gets closer and closer year after year, and the cheerleaders work very hard to hold their title.

The trophies that we have won are beautiful, and our school is proud when we bring new ones to the school each year.

We will work hard this year to try and cheer our teams on to victory, and also try to become State Champions once again. When someone is a Franklin Cheerleader, she is proud to be part of such an exciting and challenging sport. Although some of us will be leaving the squad this year, we will always be Franklin Cheerleaders in our hearts

FOR MEN

A Special Thanks . . .

June 1976

Dear Friends,

Once again a graduating class of Benjamin Franklin High School is searching for a way to say thanks to faculty members, administrators, and staff members who have given them so much help during some very important years. As we, the Class of 1976, look back on what other classes have said, we find it difficult to think of anything that has not been said before.

So, although we are at a loss for unique and innovative ways of expressing our feelings, we still want to say -- Thank you!

Thank you for your patience and guidance.

Thank you for your understanding when we did it wrong.

Thank you for your encouragement when things looked dark and difficult.

Thank you for your praise when we did it right.

Thank you for your never-failing confidence in us, even though we stumbled along the way.

Now, after our years of learning and growing here at Benjamin Franklin High School, the time has come when we must say good-bye.

During our years here, many of us puzzled and pondered in an English class over some of the words and writings of William Shakespeare. Now, how sharply do we understand the words of that famous Bard when he wrote . . . "Parting is such sweet sorrow . . ."

For we do, indeed, feel a sweet pride in our accomplishment, in a milestone reached in a goal that has been achieved. Yet the sorrow, evidenced by the great lump in our throats, makes this a bittersweet moment when we must say to you-- Franklin Faculty Administration and Staff--Good-bye.

Sincerely

The class of 1976

Lest We Forget

Good bye and Good luck to the Class of '76 from the Key Yearbook Advisor and Staff

Addie Rich

The Class of '76 was saddened by the untimely death, on May 12, 1975, of a classmate, Addie Rich. Addie was well-liked by her fellow students and was active in many sports and class events. Her English teacher, Mr. Richard Lourette, had in his files one of the poems written by Addie during her junior year at Franklin. The poem has been included in the 1976 Yearbook at the request of the many friends of Addie Rich.

Innerbeing

Innerbeing is the power within the depth of you.

The power that possesses mind, body, & soul.

Takes your mind showing you inner-visions, things you never thought could really be there.

Taking your body & making it do all sorts of things, you never thought you could do, but the power is so great that you can't help but do it.

What it does to your soul? It makes all your feelings come to the surface. All those feelings you used to hide go & reach out to that special someone.

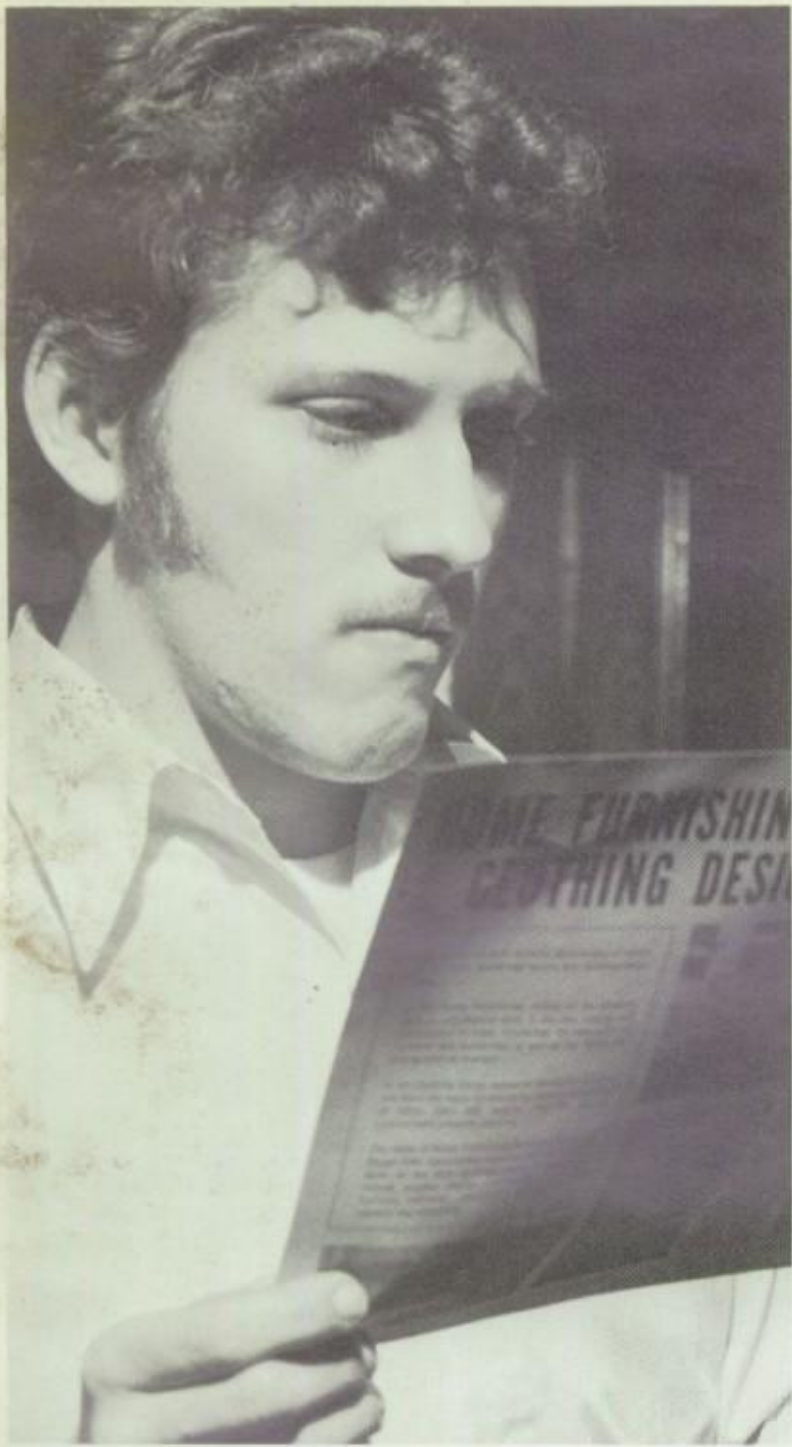

Innerbeing the source intelligence, power, being what you are & being proud of it.

Innerbeing is the power within the depth of you.

So I'm a little nuts!

Once more, with feeling!

Now what did I do?

Mmmmmmm--good!

Happiness is...

Where does this piece go?

My little corner of the world.

Our Alma Mater.

Lunch break.

Watchin' all the girls go by.

15 -- 24 -- gosh... what's that third number?

This one's really good!

We pledge allegiance...

Next year, I won't have to stand on my toes.

In a world of his own.

Reminds me of mud pies.

Ketchup, anyone?

Pure concentration.

See how easy?

What'd you do that for?

Think it's going to work?

Math's easy with a calculator.

See? They match!

Where does this piece go?

What time do we get out of here?

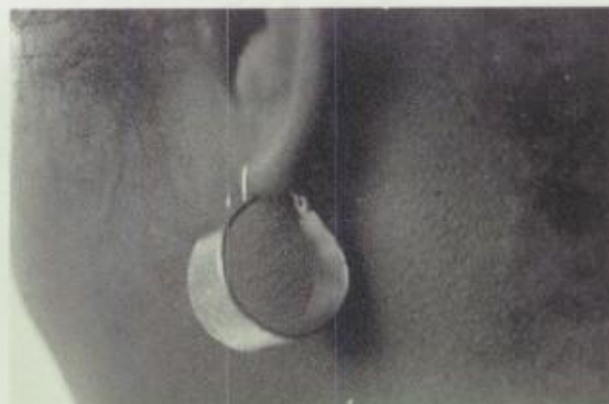

Please don't eat the daisies.

Who, Me?

Think he'd go for me?

Perspective.

Third Annual Yearbook Writing Contest

Janice White, First Prize Winner in the 3rd Annual Yearbook Writing Contest

Mr. Pincus Cohen, Principal, congratulates Janice White.

Please FORGIVE me!

If I have judged you,
without acknowledging the things you have done for me,
then please forgive me;
I just wanted to show my lack of gratitude.

If I have invaded your privacy,
then please forgive me;
I only wanted to get to know you, so I could more easily hurt you.

If I don't help you in a time of need,
then please forgive me;
I feel that it would be an insult to me.

If I couldn't love you for what you are,
then please forgive me;
I was brought up in a world of hostility...

If I can't leave you feeling guilty of injustice,
then please forgive me;
I wanted to leave you with no self-pride.

If I can have the same from you,
then we can truly meet and bring destruction to each other...

First Place

Stephen Morgana, winner of second place in writing contest.

Mr. Pincus Cohen, Principal, congratulates Steve Morgana.

THE BLUE PLANET

"Captain this is First Officer Johnson speaking. We are approaching the blue planet. I suggest we lower velocity to 30,000.

"Thank you," said Captain Smith. "Navigator lower velocity to 30,000 and adjust course to 04980° right."

"30,000; 04980° right," repeated the Navigator.

The ship had been travelling to the blue planet for three months. When they left their home planet, Beta-10, the crew was very excited. Now that they were so near to the blue planet there was a bit of tension in everyone.

The ship's automatic orbit control set the ship in an orbit which encircled the entire solar system. When all was ready a small craft would be sent to the blue planet, and for the first time in history people from Beta-10 will set foot on the surface of another planet.

"Solar orbit established sir."

"Thank you navigator. Now, please command computer to choose a landing party."

The navigator obeyed. The lights on the computer console blinked into life. In a moment the landing list was computed.

"Captain, computer list computed."

"Notify the selected crew members and have them meet me in shuttle-4."

Three minutes later the landing party was assembled in the shuttle craft.

First Officer Johnson, Science Officer Stevens and Archeologist Miller were the chosen crew members.

"Ready for launch Captain," said the First Officer.

"Commence countdown," replied the Captain.

"5.....4.....3.....2.....1.....0, launch accomplished, Captain. ETA 1 minute."

After one minute of flight the ship landed on the barren planet's surface.

"Science Officer Stevens reporting, sir. We have set down near a small lake. There is also a building nearby and a dried river bed west of us."

"How very interesting," stated Miller.

The crew left the ship and headed for the building that was spotted. The building seemed to be only one level high. But after computer analysis it was discovered that there were more levels under ground.

"It seems that ages of dust storms have buried the other levels, sir," said Miller.

"Let's find an entrance and proceed to investigate," said Smith.

They found a large hole in the wall of the building and entered. Once inside they were amazed by the crude construction of the building.

There was a hall-way which followed the perimeter of the building. There was an open courtyard in the center which was not filled with dust. On either side of the hall there were doors. At first the crew did not know how to open the doors. They had never seen doors which did not open by themselves. They entered the small room.

"Captain," said Johnson, "there are the skeletons of twenty people in here. Each on a chair-like object. Do you think that this was a burial room?"

"Don't be silly," interrupted Miller. "They apparently were assembled there for some reason when they all suddenly died."

"Captain I have found some writing on this black wall. I can't decipher it without the ship's computer," said Stevens.

"Well, record it and we'll decipher it later."

The crew left the room and went to the next lower level. Here they found a larger room.

"Captain," said Miller, "it appears that this was a storage room for records. Do you see this?" Miller took a book off one of the shelves that lined the room. "It has print inside. This must be a book. I listened to a tape about them once."

"Captain," yelled Stevens from the doorway. "I have found another inscription on this door."

"Good. Record it!"

"Captain, time has run out. We must return to the ship."

The space travelers returned to their shuttle craft and blasted off. In one minute they were back at their space ship.

As the blue planet pulled away, the computer printed out:

DECIPHERED MESSAGE

Inscription 1: Physics test tomorrow

Inscription 2: No lunch students today stop

"What's a physics test?"

"What's a no lunch student?"

"We'll never know."

TIME

Continuously moving along,
It never ceases.
It is like a repetitious song,
that breaks down into pieces.

We waste it when we are young.
We value it when we get old.
It is all wrong.
Time should be treated as gold.

With so many hours in a day,
We take advantage and waste a few.
It wouldn't matter if we could relive them in some way, but once they are gone we only have the new.

The following poem was not submitted to been. The Yearbook Staff feels that it has such merit, we take the liberty of printing

it here.

PUERTO RICO

Puerto Rico, eres como una esmeralda, entre medio tus cielos y mares tan azules.
Parece que eres un mundo solo, colgando
en el espacio.

Puerto Rico, con tus mujeres tan encantadoras. Aquí es que se encuentra el amor sincero. Aquí en tus montañas tan altas, y llenas de toda clase de fruta. Aquí en us tan bellas.

Puerto Rico, tu eres verdaderamente una Isla única. Tu con tu jungla tropical que no se puede duplicar.

?Puerto Rico, que sera de ti? Tu tan lindo pero tan vulnerable.

Puerto Rico, te queremos tanto, pero como Todas cosas solamente podemos disfrutar de ti, pero nunca vamos a lograr dominarte
o tenerte en nuestro poder!

(Translation)

Puerto Rico, you are like an emerald, in between your skies and seas so blue. You appear as though a world alone, hanging in space.

Puerto Rico, with your women so enchanting.
Here is where you find true love. Here with your mountains high, filled with all types of fruits. Here with your beaches so beautiful.

Puerto Rico, you are truly an island rare.
You with your incomparable tropical jungle.

Puerto Rico, what will become of you? You so breathtaking, but so vulnerable.

Puerto Rico, we love you so, but like all things we can only share of you, never can we hope to dominate or have you in our power.

Rhoda, It's been very nice knowing you these past years. I've enjoyed having you in my English & typing class. I just wish you didn't have to graduate. Even though I know you are pretty excited, I just want to tell you that I wish you all the best in the world. You are a very beautiful person in not only in looks, but also in the way which you act, talk and do things. I wish you lots of happiness in your future. Be happy with all the decisions in life. Life has its ups & downs, but I know if you try you'll make it. Be happy with Robert and hope that when you & him get married you'll invite me to the wedding. Stay all your dreams & wishes come true hoping that we can keep in touch always. Keep it cool, and stay as sweet and as pretty as you are.

Love always,
Mrs Maria Morales
